Deer Kill Up 10% in District

PARK FALLS — Area deer registration totals show an increased deer harvest for the 1975 season, according to Cliff Wiita, area wildlife manager for the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources.

In the area covering Ashland, Price, Iron and Taylor counties, a count of stags show a 10 per cent increase in buck registration. A total of 2,908 bucks were tallied, compared with 2,666 in 1974. In addition, a total of 1,710 deer were taken on quota permits, giving the area a total registration of 4,618 deer for the season.

The best season in seven years (since 1968) highlighted a continued climb in buck harvests. This was accomplished even though area-wide hunting pressure was very light, lower than last year with the exception of Taylor County. Actually area hunting pressure is at the lowest level in the state. The season was a good one with a higher deer kill distributed among less hunters.

Again, yearlings made up the major age class of the bucks taken. Aging samples show that 60 per cent of the bucks were the yearlings (one and one-half years old). This is a healthy situation, reflecting the sustained fawn production and survival of young deer during the past mild winters, said Wiita.

One negative factor did show up, a noticeable decline in quality of antlers on the yearling bucks. The size of antlers is directly related to the physical condition of the animal on its winter range.

"While hunter success was up, the harvest potential in the area wasn't even approached, said Wiita. "The reasons for this are very low hunting pressure and late season opening dates. Access and weather factors hurt some in Ashland and Iron counties. Also, only two management units had all available quota permits taken."

Tree Cuttings Will Aid Deer

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the United States Forest Service are cooperating in a program to provide food for wintering deer in certain areas in the Ottawa National Forest, according to John Hendrickson, wildlife habitat biologist for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources at Baraga.

For the past five years under Michigan's deer range improvement program, areas adjacent to winter deer yards have been systematically cut so tree tops can provide immediate food for the deer, and the resulting regeneration of sprouts and seedlings can provide a continuing food supply.

Mainly hardwoods are cut while trees that provide protective cover, such as hemlock and cedar, are left. These cutting projects provide natural food for deer at a time when snow and low temperatures confine the deer to areas of heavy cover where food may be lacking.

In many instances these cuttings are part of a commercial timber sale. However, if there is no timber sale activity, these deer range improvement cuttings may be contracted to local persons. In these cases, marked trees in a designated project area are cut down to bring the tops within easy reach of the deer.

This year contract cuttings are planned for Ontonagon and Gogebic counties. All contracts are let on a competitive bid basis. Individuals interested in doing these cuttings should contact the DNR office at Wakefield, Baraga or Twin Lakes, so their names can be added to department mailing lists. They will then be directly notified when these cuttings are to be contracted.

Funds Sent As Thanks

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — More than $1.2 million will be sent this month to Michigan counties and recipients of Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) as thanks for their help in locating parents negligent with child support payments.

The payments, funded mainly by the federal government, are incentives to individuals and counties to locate parents who have been ducking the payments.

Michigan counties will receive $700,000, and 30,000 ADC recipients will get a total of about $500,000 as part of the monthly payments allowed by new federal legislation.

Since October, counties have received about $1.4 million and ADC recipients have received about $658,000 for their help.

Your Social Security Questions and Answers

QUESTION — I met the requirement to be insured for at least a minimum retirement benefit from Social Security. Upon my husband's death, I received 80 per cent of his social security benefits.

ANSWER — If you have enough quarters of coverage to be insured, there would be a lump-sum death benefit payable. Ordinarily, the $255 is paid to the surviving spouse if the couple was living together at the time of death. If there is no eligible spouse, the $255 may be paid directly to the funeral home to apply against the unpaid funeral home expenses. If the funeral home bill is paid, the lump-sum death benefit is payable to the person who paid the expenses. Your estate would be entitled to payment only on the basis of having paid the funeral home expenses.

QUESTION — I would like to know, if in the event of my death, would my estate be entitled to the lump-sum benefit of $255?

Jet Crashed During Instrument Landing

MILAN, Italy (AP) — A Trans World Airlines jet flying many Italian-Americans to Italy for Christmas crashed Monday as it was making an instrument landing in thick fog, injuring 30 of the 133 persons aboard. There were no deaths.

One of the injured passengers was a Detroit man, identified by the airline only as R. Laura.

Most of the victims were taken to local hospitals for treatment of cuts and bruises but the pilot and first officer suffered fractures.

Metropolitan Opera tenor Luciano Pavarotti was among the passengers who escaped injury.

The Boeing 707 was on a flight from San Francisco and New York to Milan's Malpensa Airport with 122 passengers and a crew of 11, TWA announced.

It circled the airport for 1½ hours in pea-soup fog before making an unsuccessful attempt to land, airport officials said. They added that after regaining altitude, the plane made a second approach 15 minutes later but hit the apron of the runway and skidded onto an asphalt strip used by helicopters.

Wisconsin Adds 5th to FBI's 10

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Leonard Peltier, added to the Federal Bureau of Investigation's 10 most wanted fugitives list Monday, became the fifth person with Wisconsin ties on the list.

Peltier was indicted Nov. 25 at Rapid City, S.D., in connection with a fatal shooting of two FBI agents. He also is sought on a federal warrant charging unlawful flight to avoid prosecution in an alleged 1972 murder attempt on a Milwaukee police officer.

Peltier, 31, a Grand Forks, N.D., native and member of the American Indian Movement, is the only one of four persons sought in connection with the South Dakota shootings who remains at large. He also was indicted following an Oregon incident last November on nine counts of violating the National Firearms Act.

Others with Wisconsin ties on the FBI most wanted list are Dwight A. Armstrong, 24; Leo F. Bort, 27; David S. Fine, 23, and Benjamin Paddock, 49.

Armstrong, Burt and Fine are sought in connection with a fatal 1970 bombing at the University of Wisconsin campus in Madison.

Paddock, a Sheboygan native, has been on the list since 1969 after escaping from federal custody. He had been serving a 20-year sentence for a bank robbery in Phoenix, Ariz.

Fishing Issue Is Explained

WASHINGTON (BNS) — Food and Drug Administration officials say they have no authority to enter into the controversy over Indian fishing rights in Northern Michigan until a complaint alleges that tainted fish are being sold across state lines.

Lake trout and white fish caught in Lakes Michigan and Superior have been found with concentrations of the drug PCB that are far above acceptable levels.

Indians point to an 1836 treaty which gives them unlimited fishing rights, but state officials say it does not give them the right to sell tainted fish. The issue is now in the state courts.

An FDA spokesman said that as long as the matter remains in Michigan, the federal government can do little but advise "but if we know of an Indian or anyone else, driving a truck to Chicago to sell tainted fish, we'll stop him."

Before there is inter-state commerce, however, the issue is strictly a state one that falls within the responsibility of the Department of Natural Resources and the State Agriculture Department.
